

Love Doesn't Care Who You Love

by Tracy Spring

You may love an apple.
You may love a pear.
You may love a bulldog.
You may love a bear.

You may love an orangutan,
swinging' in a tree.
You may love a flower,
like that honeybee.

Love doesn't care who you love,
only that you love.
No, Love doesn't care who you love.

You may love a forest.
You may love a tree.
You may love a great big whale,
swimming' in the sea.

You may love a butterfly,
'cause Love's not big or small.
Love fills the space within your heart,
...one size fits all!

Love doesn't care who you love,
only that you love.
No, Love doesn't care who you love.

LOVE, YES I DO, HOW I LOVE...YOU!

Love laughs when you're happy.
Love cries when you're sad.
Love cares when you're lonely,
and even when you're mad.

'Cause Love knows we all make mistakes
in things we say and do.
Love sees the best inside of us,
the Light that shines on through!

Love doesn't care who you love,
only that you love.
No, Love doesn't care who you love.

LOVE, YES I DO, HOW I LOVE...YOU!

No matter if you're pretty.
No matter if you're thin.
No matter if you're young or old,
or the color of your skin.

And you can love whomever
makes your insides sing.
Fills your heart with happy,
makes your love bells ring!

Love doesn't care who you love,
only that you love.
No, Love doesn't care who,
Love doesn't care who you,
Love doesn't care who you love!

I: (Who do you love?
Who do you love?!) :I
